

REST ASSURED

Your home was inspected by Burgess.

"We have verified the construction quality of your new home from the inside out."

Third-Party Inspected

When you make the major decision to purchase a new home, you are relying upon us, your builder, to manage thousands of factors regarding its design, engineering and construction. One of the most critical factors is maintaining consistent quality from start to finish. So, to help keep our quality at the highest level, we have retained Burgess Construction Consultants, Inc. as our independent third-party inspection firm.

Quality, Consistency... Every Home.

An integral partner with our internal quality and construction teams, Burgess acts as a second set of experienced eyes and inspects each new home at various stages of construction. These inspections identify possible issues before they become problems for you, the homeowner. Additionally, Burgess trains and keeps us up to date on the latest building techniques and construction innovations, so we are able to continue reaching new heights in quality construction.

With more than 30 years as an independent inspection firm, Burgess has the experience you can trust. This year alone, Burgess will perform more than 150,000 inspections and help improve the quality of thousands of homes across the U.S. Together with our integrity as a builder and the trusted experience of Burgess, we hope you can rest assured knowing your home was built with the highest regard for quality construction.
